None

Link and the Thief's Lantern

Prudentia

Virtūtēs

Prudentia

Iūstitia

Fortitūdō

Temperantia

Fidēs

Spēs

Cāritās

Īnsula Windfall multās lucernās habēbat. Omnī nocte lūcēbant.

Windfall Island had many lanterns. They shone every night.

Sed ūnō māne — trēs lucernae āberant!

But one morning — three lanterns were gone!

Proximā nocte — quīnque plūrēs āberant! Quis lucernās capit?

The next night — five more gone! Who takes the lanterns?

Incolae īrātī erant. "Quis lucernās capit?" clāmāvērunt.

The people were angry. "Who takes the lanterns?" they said.

"Fūrem invēnī!" Lincō dīxērunt. "Eum cape!"

"Find the thief!" they told Link. "Catch him!"

Nox vēnit. Lincus tēctum ascendit. Spectāvit.

Night came. Link climbed to a rooftop. He watched.

Exspectāvit. Quis lucernās capit?

He waited. Who takes the lanterns?

Tum — parva umbra sē mōvit. Lucernam rapuit. Fūgit!

Then — a small shadow moved. It grabbed a lantern. It ran!

Lincus dēsiluit. Tacitē secūtus est.

Link jumped down. He followed quietly.

Fūr ex oppidō cucurrit. Collem ascendit!

The thief ran out of town. Up the hill!

Quis lucernās capit? Moblīnī! Lincus castra exspectāvit.

Who takes the lanterns? Moblins! Link expected a camp.

Sed castra nōn erant. Sōlum spelunca. Sōlum ūnus parvus Moblīnus.

But there was no camp. Just a cave. Just one small Moblin.

Spelunca plēna lucernārum erat. Omnēs accēnsae. Omnēs lūcēbant.

The cave was full of lanterns. All lit. All glowing.

Parvus Moblīnus in mediō sēdēbat. Reliquiās edēbat. Sōlus erat.

The little Moblin sat in the middle. He was eating scraps. He was alone.

Lincus in ōstiō speluncae stetit. Moblīnus eum vīdit.

Link stood in the cave entrance. The Moblin saw him.

Moblīnus faciem tēxit. Tremēbat. Ictum exspectābat.

The Moblin covered his face. He shook. He waited to be hit.

Lincus nōn sē mōvit. Moblīnum spectāvit. Lucernās spectāvit.

Link did not move. He looked at the Moblin. He looked at the lanterns.

Lincus sēdit.

Link sat down.

Ūnā in lūce sēdērunt. Calidum erat.

They sat together in the light. It was warm.

Lincus surrēxit. Dīmidium lucernārum cēpit. Moblīnus spectāvit sed nōn fūgit.

Link stood up. He took half the lanterns. The Moblin watched but did not run.

Lincus lucernās domum portāvit. In stīpitēs reposuit.

Link carried the lanterns home. He hung them on their posts.

"Quis lucernās capit?" rogāvērunt incolae. "Fūr abiit," inquit Lincus.

"Who takes the lanterns?" asked the people. "The thief is gone," said Link.

Lincus suam lucernam cēpit. Collem ascendit. Eam ad speluncam relīquit.

Link took his own lantern. He walked up the hill. He left it by the cave.

Glossārium

Īnsula Windfall multās lucernās habēbat

Windfall Island had many lanterns

Omnī nocte lūcēbant

They shone every night

Sed ūnō māne — trēs lucernae āberant

But one morning — three lanterns were gone

Proximā nocte — quīnque plūrēs āberant

The next night — five more gone

Quis lucernās capit

Who takes the lanterns

Incolae īrātī erant

The people were angry

" clāmāvērunt

" they said

"Fūrem invēnī

"Find the thief

" Lincō dīxērunt

" they told Link

"Eum cape

"Catch him

Nox vēnit

Night came

Lincus tēctum ascendit

Link climbed to a rooftop

Spectāvit

He watched

Exspectāvit

He waited

Tum — parva umbra sē mōvit

Then — a small shadow moved

Lucernam rapuit

It grabbed a lantern

Fūgit

It ran

Lincus dēsiluit

Link jumped down

Glossārium (cont.)

Tacitē secūtus est

He followed quietly

Fūr ex oppidō cucurrit

The thief ran out of town

Collem ascendit

Up the hill

Moblīnī

Moblins

Lincus castra exspectāvit

Link expected a camp

Sed castra nōn erant

But there was no camp

Sōlum spelunca

Just a cave

Sōlum ūnus parvus Moblīnus

Just one small Moblin

Spelunca plēna lucernārum erat

The cave was full of lanterns

Omnēs accēnsae

All lit

Omnēs lūcēbant

All glowing

Parvus Moblīnus in mediō sēdēbat

The little Moblin sat in the middle

Reliquiās edēbat

He was eating scraps

Sōlus erat

He was alone

Lincus in ōstiō speluncae stetit

Link stood in the cave entrance

Moblīnus eum vīdit

The Moblin saw him

Moblīnus faciem tēxit

The Moblin covered his face

Tremēbat

He shook

Glossārium (cont.)

Ictum exspectābat

He waited to be hit

Lincus nōn sē mōvit

Link did not move

Moblīnum spectāvit

He looked at the Moblin

Lucernās spectāvit

He looked at the lanterns

Lincus sēdit

Link sat down

Ūnā in lūce sēdērunt

They sat together in the light

Calidum erat

It was warm

Lincus surrēxit

Link stood up

Dīmidium lucernārum cēpit

He took half the lanterns

Moblīnus spectāvit sed nōn fūgit

The Moblin watched but did not run

Lincus lucernās domum portāvit

Link carried the lanterns home

In stīpitēs reposuit

He hung them on their posts

" rogāvērunt incolae

" asked the people

"Fūr abiit," inquit Lincus

"The thief is gone," said Link

Lincus suam lucernam cēpit

Link took his own lantern

Eam ad speluncam relīquit

He left it by the cave